

Industry Group Improperly Promoted on Conservation Website

Go to the Conservation Commission page on the Town website.

<http://www.carverma.org/conservation/consagent.htm#links> Under "Other Conservation Links the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers Association is listed. Since when is an industry lobbying group a conservation link. This is outrageous and indicative of the undue influence of this group with Sarah Hewins and the Con Comm. How would Saint Sarah feel if a developers Industry lobbying group appeared on the building commissioners web page. Sarah may get the lions share of the money from this group and magic awards that are given during campaigns but that doesn't make them conservation links. If they were they might lobby against stripping the land from it's natural sand filter, dumping nutrients like nitrogen into the environment, pesticides into our water and silt into our rivers . When the growers do the same things that developers do Hewins looks the other way. If it were Jon Deli this self promoting, self aggrandizing, anti business buffoon would likely sue him into the stone age with our money. In truth the growers association is no different than other big business lobbys. They act in their own interests and those of the shills that support them. We are not against the growers association they are simply not a conservation organization.
