Selectmen Attack Legal Services Committee

On Tuesday Dec 16th Selectmen Angley, Casey and Ward attacked the legal services committee instead of providing useful input on the proposed RFP.

The common complaint from all three is that Rick LaFond is not the point man for the proposals. We've waited more than ten years for the Selectmen and or LaFond to act. Isn't it time to let people who know how to accomplish something do the job? If Rick was interested in writing an RFP it would have been done by now.

Frank Casey thinks Kopelman and Paige is "batting 1000 percent" on the work provided to the town. According to their own billings it's more like they are billing us 1000 percent of the value of the work provided.

Angley and his cohorts think it's time to have the law firm in to explain why the town was charged $100,000 over budget for their work last year. Angley blames the finance committee, and "the angry mob" of citizens who dared question this outrageous violation of state law. Angley needs only look in the mirror to find the responsible party.

Ward questioned the committee's decision to solicit input from the inspector general's office. These three are incapable of learning from their mistakes. They prefer political procurement to proper procurement and paid political advice to free legal advice. These three are a few cranberries short of a barrel.
